PROTESTERS march down Quezon Bridge on their way to Luningan Boatdock to mark the 34th anniversary of the declaration of martial law and condemn the spate of political killings under the Arroyo administration.

Protesters warn GMA she'll end up like Thaksin

THOUSANDS OF PROTESTERS YESTERDAY rallied to denounce the spate of killings of nongovernment activists and to warn President Manong Arroyo that she could suffer the same fate as Thailand's ousted leader.

Some 3,000 protesters, including nearly 1,000 who marched for four days from Quezon province, started at the Luningan Boatdock in Manila to mark the 34th anniversary of the imposition of martial law by the late dictator Ferdinand Marcos—a period marked by massive human rights violations.

The protesters also warned the Arroyos she could suffer the same fate as Marcos—who was ousted in a 1986 "people power" revolt—or Thai Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra, who was ousted in a bloodless military-led coup on Tuesday.

Some protesters carried posters with pictures of Thaksin labeled "murder" and the Arroyos labeled "sons." They burned a car-size banner of an Arroyo with the words "people power" on the banner.

"The Arroyos is carrying the same path of corruption and repression taken by both Marcos and Thaksin," said Carol Andal, chair of Bagong Alyansang Makabayan (BAM) group. "She has every reason to be afraid right now."

King backs coup; junta gags media

Generals ban political activities across Thailand

BANGKOK — THAILAND'S much-loved king has yet to say anything in public, but many Thais see his silence as proof he is supporting the military leaders who banned all meetings and political activities yesterday, two days after they ousted Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra in a coup.

"To ensure the constitutional monarchy is functioning after reform has been completed, the Political Reform Council has ordered political parties to halt all meetings and political activities," the military said in a statement read out on television.

"Political gatherings of more than five people have already been banned, but political activities can resume when normalcy is restored," it said without specifying a time frame.

The ruling generals were also set to impose tough new curbs on the media, including a ban on expressions of public opinion as they tightened their grip on power, which was roundly condemned abroad, including by the United States.

An Army official said news and broadcast officials had been summoned to a morning line in the day to spell out the new regulations.

But the nation was back to work as normal yesterday. Bangkok traffic was back to the familiar snarl.

"The coup was very unceremonious, implicitly endorsed by the king, who is

House leaders unite in stand vs martial law

By Michael Lim Ubat and TJ Bargarie

LEADERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES yesterday joined the opposition in vowing to fight any move to reimpose martial law.

House Speaker Francisco said, "We will not allow the return of martial law, and we will not tolerate the return of authoritarian rule."

"We shall never allow it again," Francisco said, pointing out, however, that President Manong Arroyo in all her actions to protect the state from returning authoritarianism never tried to impose martial law.

"If she does, it will even be a trigger for the people to rise against her," he said.

In the Senate, however, Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile declared President Ferdinand Marcos' declaration of martial law 34 years ago and his own role in its implementation, but acknowledged that there were reasons.

"Martial law was proclaimed to address a

SC allows Sabio to go home, stays arrest orders

By Lela R. Salazar and TJ Bargarie

THE SUPREME COURT YESTERDAY ordered the suspension of the Senate inquiry into the murder of Benigno Aquino Jr. and the arrest of Senator Antonio Trillanes IV, and effectively allowed detained Presidential Commission on Good Government (PCGG) Senator Sabio to go home.

Chief Justice Antonio Panganiban also suspended the arrest warrants issued by the Senate for four PCGG commissioners and five affiliates of Philippine Holdings Corp. (PHC), but imposed a gag order on the parties concerned pending the resolution of the cases questioning the warrants.

"None of the parties is allowed to talk. There is a gag rule as the matter is not an interview period, which will be a violation of the rule with contempt," said Imelda Eban, public information chief of the high court.

The parties were instructed to submit their memoranda in 15 days, after which the tribunal is expected to issue a ruling in a month's time.

Earlier in the day, Sen. Richard Gordon said Sabio was to be released regardless of how the Supreme Court ruled on the petition for a writ of habeas corpus filed by the PCGG in its chair's behalf.

But Gordon gave a caveat: Sabio should appear at the next Senate hearing on the alleged issues of PHC and related unexplained expenditures or face charges.

Sabio, 79, was named in the Supreme Court for the oral arguments on the petition that pinned him and Solicitor General Eduardo Napata against Sen. Joker Arroyo and the Sen. are named, Pacific Agribusiness.

"Sabio is an innocent victim, at the call of the Senate," Gordon, chair of the investigating committee on government corporations, said. In a forum at the Senate before he proceeded to the high court to attend the hearing.

He said Sabio, who had been in Senate custody since Sept. 12, could go home after the oral arguments and say three national guards in law as he appeared at the next hearing where was named.

Panganiban issued the orders after the high court heard the oral arguments of the parties questioning and defending the arrest orders issued against the PCGG commissioners and PHC officials who had repeatedly implicated the Senate inquiry.

Of the arrest warrants, the only one released was that issued on Sabio.

The PCGG chair agreed his own case before the 14 Supreme Court justices.

Justice Renato Corona indicated himself from the proceedings, citing close ties with one of the parties.

During the interpellation by the justices, Sabio said he did not want to testify before the Senate because it

Yehey! Satur goes hi-tech with online presscon

By Erwin Oñia

SEN. REX TORRES GOES ONLINE TODAY AS a senator and a Filipino citizen was created 30 years ago when martial law was declared.

But on Thursday, House of Representatives Deputy Minority Leader and Senate Vice President Sen. Satur Ocampo was in front of an Apple laptop computer, leading his first Internet-based chat and press conference. Ocampo answered questions from several members of the local and international media, including two Irish-based Filipino bloggers and writer Rosemarie Torres.

Based at the office of Philippine-based Internet portal MySms.com, Ocampo used the help of several moderators to discuss the increasing role of technology and the Internet in monitoring democracy.

"The timing of this chat is appropriate as we recall the declaration of martial law 30 years ago at which we have been learning that feeling that martial law has not left our political life," Ocampo said.

Asked how he felt about using technology to freely express his political and personal thoughts, Ocampo said, "Technology is giving us tools to facilitate things which we can communicate freely and fast. During martial law, the regular press was censored and guided, so we took recourse to an alternative underground press network and freedom of expression."

More scores

Ocampo said Bryan Maras and other pro-democracy political parties have more scores to maintain in Manila but the Internet provides them an "alternative" avenue to reach out to more people.

He started writing for a web blog titled, www.the Internet called "Saturon", in March 2006, when he and four other party-list representatives were locked up in Congress at police headquarters as part of the following the declaration of a state of national emergency in late January. Five of them were placed under the "preventive custody" of Congress. The sixth, independent Representative Cayetano Lirio, was arrested nationwide in government custody.

"I believe this new medium that it affords news faster to reach others I may not actually be able to reach. My first chat is blogging unmoderated, it is like the Internet 5 years (before) but now out of whole from which we had to struggle out of it," Ocampo said.

Ocampo then quickly corrected himself. "My last sentence is awkward, I want to edit myself," he wrote.

He acknowledged that technology will play a critical role in helping safeguard democracy in the Philippines.

"Maybe some journalists may feel uncomfortable in using the new technology, but the more essential thing is journalists to have freely can we reach the wider public, and as what create the public can express its views through the media," he added.

He said that while he himself is not adept with new technology, he believes the Internet is a tool that the technologically savvy can use to monitor anything at anything at any time.

Ocampo added that "no media" has become more accessible to the left in recent years.

Ts-tsa-tsa

"The Internet with our political sphere, as he is involved with the wider media coverage," he continued.

He also discussed the recent military advances in Thailand, and pointed out that the Philippines and Thailand have different political dynamics and international engagements. "But what must be noted is that the problems that engaged Thailand that police (under) Thailand (Thais) are the same as those facing the beleaguered President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo. The issue of legitimacy, corruption, and political repression, but the involvement of these issues must not be extended to the military, the dominant sector of which is controlled with (Arroyo) aim against the people," he said.

Deadlock in peace talks gives businessmen jitters

COTABATO CITY—BUSINESSMEN IN THE AUTONOMOUS REGION in Muslim Mindanao (ARMM) have expressed alarm over the deadlock in peace talks between the government and the separatist Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF).

Business leaders said the honorable peace and other situation in the region due to the ongoing power struggle had threatened much in the improvement of the business climate. Haddi Idris Basilio, chair of the ARMM Business Council, said the business community in the region is for the continuation of the peace talks.

"The businessmen in this region have not and will not wait for the MILF-MILF talks to be resolved," Basilio said.

Basilio said, "Businessmen, chair of the Muslim Business Council from 2003 to 2005, and their contacts abroad have been heavily engaged in ongoing peace talks."

He added that the peace process never as their group is determining the safety of investments in Mindanao.

Basilio and Idris stressed optimism that the government and the MILF "without compromise and ensure the peace process."

Idris Marican, ARMM trade and industry secretary, said officials of the ARMM are for the success of the talks.

"There are regional governors, Daily Safety Assurance, fully supports the peace talks. There is no power line for us to support full support to the MILF-MILF talks," Marican said.

Meanwhile, Idris said MILF negotiators said two options are left for the government and the MILF movement at this stage of the peace process.

These, he said, are either "we build a bridge and continue the talks or we build a wall and continue everything."

"We don't know yet what building building bridge because that is the critical way," he said.

Idris said that the MILF might go to the construction of remaining armed struggle over territories after the government peace process.

Basketball team manager suspends coach

Sanction to give Victoria time to respond to sex rap

By Ed Yap

MANILA (PNA) — The Philippine Basketball Association (PBA) has suspended the coach of the Victoria team for 30 days for failing to respond to a sexual harassment charge against him.

The PBA president announced that management was suspending the coach for 30 days for failing to respond to a sexual harassment charge against him.

Although he is innocent until proven guilty, we cannot let it go until we have heard his side of the story. We are not punishing him until we have heard his side of the story. We are not punishing him until we have heard his side of the story.

Oil firms roll back fuel prices

Gas, diesel, kerosene cheaper by 50¢/liter

By Miguel L. Ho

WITH FUEL PRICES CONTINUING TO SOFTEN around the world, the country's oil companies yesterday reduced their gasoline, diesel and kerosene rates by 50 centavos a liter for the fifth straight week.

New player National Petroleum Corp. was the first to roll back its prices yesterday at noon, followed by independent oil firm South Philippine Corp. at 2 p.m.

Energy Corp., Philippine Shell Petroleum Corp., Chevron Philippines Inc. and United Petroleum Philippines

Inc. reduced the prices of the same products yesterday as well.

Shell Philippines Corp. and Piyung V would follow suit at 12:04 a.m. today.

According to the Department of Energy, the regional benchmark Dubai crude has nearly hit its September average of $61.28 a barrel from $66.93 a barrel.

The price of unleaded gasoline based on the Mean of Three Singapore (MOT) benchmark the oil companies dropped to an average of $64.71 a barrel in the Sept. 1-30 period from last month's average of $65.64 a barrel.

MOT-based diesel dropped to an average of $79.26 a barrel in the first 30 days of the month from an average of $80.37 a barrel posted in August.

Since the start of the year, oil firms have rolled gasoline prices 25

Reluctant giant tiptoes through electronic ticketing

By Davina L. Lanza

Just after noon

UNDISPUTEDLY AN INDUSTRY leader, Philippine Airlines is approaching the online booking phenomenon cautiously, especially since it continues to rely heavily on an extensive network of franchise sales agents and travel agents for the bulk of its sales.

Despite lagging behind some aggressive competitors in the online arena, PAL's physical sales network is nothing to laugh at, having been built and nurtured over the last half century when the airline was a state-owned monopoly.

Thus, PAL is in a better position to test out its reliable

Fiscal governance in fisheries

Doing things right

Spending the money in the right way can be better achieved with transparency. A. Holcher, W. Kruttschnitt and I. Shapiro stand in their Budget Information Service and Income, Social Budget Project. The duty of risk and responsibility in the management of public resources is essential because it means

However, in a 2006 issue of the Pulian Journal on Fisheries Administration published by IFAD for Fisheries Reform, done in partnership with the Foundation for Philippine Environment (FPE), it says that "the Bureau of Fisheries and Aquatic Sciences (BFAS) is hard put to providing needed information to the public. "One major reason given is 'the reluctance to give out information.'"

This has changed. At last week's conference, BFAS Director Mariano Gammon said he would now involve the fisheries sector in both budget formulation and implementation. He specifically identified Fisheries Development Center as a key participant in this process, which includes several topics of

The success of the proposed participatory does not mean many other departments of Agriculture organizational units, in spite of the Ministry's recommendations submitted since late February 2004. It is hoped that those other units will follow tomorrow's and 2005's success story initiatives. Good governance is expected to greatly improve, but we will then not only do things right, but also do the right things.

In the past few years, the smallest share of the Serbian budget has gone to municipal salaries, which employ the largest percentage of people (3 percent goes to 77 percent). Aqueducts, which has a smaller employment share of 17 percent, gets 77 percent. It is hardly surprising that municipal salaries have the greatest incidence of poverty, not only in the Serbian sector, but also among all the sectors in the country. This aqueduct sector is economically far better off.

It is suggested that if a budget reallocation is to be done, lower government expenditure equities initiatives can be undertaken using a pilot approach. Once the private sector sees these initiatives succeed, they can replicate these initiatives with their own money.

Monetary Union, because of their economically disadvantaged status, have less access not only to funds but also to information. We should "do the right thing" in allocating to them a larger share of the funds. This was the raison d'être of the proposal presented by Jacques Delors at last year's conference, with specific programs supporting the budget distribution. The new allocation is 37 percent for municipal bodies, 34 percent for central and 23 percent for operations (including gas, water and household waste treatment).

Kate Moss designs for Topshop

FASHION icon Kate Moss is now a fashion designer, and British brand Topshop has reportedly entered into a long-term agreement with the supermodel to help design and create a collection aptly called Kate Moss for Topshop. The collection will debut in the stores and the popular brand's website in spring 2007.

The deal between the two women is not the first time Moss has worked with a brand. She has designed for several other brands, including Louis Vuitton, Bulgari, Christian Dior Accessories, Versace and Calvin Klein, to name a few.

Kucha is the brand's most recent collection, and it's the collection that inspired the passion. Kucha is a collection of watches, bags and jewelry that's characterized by strong animal prints, rich textures and clean lines. The watches, which are understated and elegant, all have a touch of wildness. One, from the Circle line, is a watch with a tiger's head design.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN seven of the most stylish shows get together in one fashion show? It's better than the last!

These men represent a new breed of style—they're fashion-forward, sexy and confident. They look like they know what they're doing. They're not just models, they're artists. They're not just models, they're artists. They're not just models, they're artists.

They're the guys who make models, stylists and a lot of others because they're not just models, they're artists. They're not just models, they're artists. They're not just models, they're artists.

On a last afternoon, the seven present the 7th annual Manila Fashion Week. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music.

I have to say that, to me, it was the most fun, quick and powerful show I've ever seen. It was a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music.

Heading the door was the amazing Light show in an urban setting. But the show was not just a fashion show. It was a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music.

Jeeri Epperson

"Manila's Fashion Week is a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music."

They had great photos and music. It was a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music.

I have to say that, to me, it was the most fun, quick and powerful show I've ever seen. It was a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music.

The first time I got my photos taken was in Manila. It was a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music. It's a night of style, fashion, and music.

DOLPHY

THREE AFRICAN LONDONERS WERE GIVEN their first job by actor Dolphy. We found their paths after intense interviews. It was Rachel Lee Jackson, Oprah and Swadhin, left and Julia Tait, and David and Heidi Stone. (We had wanted a gay couple for the fourth job, but ended up with the heterosexual couple David and Heidi.) There are four unshared eggs in the basket. We'll leave the details to you, Shanghai, or Venice, depending on the species. My daughters (in the photo) and David and (young) Susan (in the photo) find the birds really cute and are taking care of them.

Not just a garage sale

Did You Know...
 "This is a lot more than a garage sale. Apart from the dresses and jewelry, we have art, furniture and even a huge chandelier that is an antique expected to raise more than $1 million."
 "Some of the items would be shown in Los Angeles two weeks ago (head of the sale in Los Angeles on Oct. 2-4).
 The sale is jointly sponsored by Industry's New York office and Adams of the United States.
 Among the items on show are several dresses by haute couture or high fashion, white and yellow gold rings and a pair of earrings and a book of architectural drawings by Thomas Jefferson.
 "The devoted, a while ago that she wanted to sell of a few things and things for sale, and a year later that he decided to sell of some 200 pieces and costumes and jewelry 800 items in total," Adams said. "He is a fashion designer living in London, going for a Moroccan to learn how and selling the 'crazy' vintage items."
 He added that the museum is supporting the drama but he is not sure if the museum is a success or not.
 And it's not as though she needs the money and Adams, in 2000, the selling these might be a success but it's not sure if it's a success or not.
 But it's not as though she needs the money and Adams, in 2000, the selling these might be a success but it's not sure if it's a success or not.
